

The need for diverse stories

Why?

We grow up with books and stories, they influence us from a very young age and everyone wants to feel included which is why diverse stories are very important for the developing mind.

Stereotypes usually in books

How many times have you found a book lead by anyone other than a usually american blonde haired blue eyed child? Not very often, it affects our perspective on what the 'norm' is and makes anyone different from it feel left out and sometimes uncomfortable with who they are which is why its so important to change that

We recommend you look for yourself and give diverse books a try!

Examples of diverse books

Books for kids

I Am Enough Grace Byers

Ambitious Girl Meena Harris

Books for teens

The skin im in by Sharon G. Flake

Tears of a tiger by Sharon M. Draper
